16.   A Web page to be transmitted from a server to a receiving terminal operated by a user through a network, the Web page comprising: a quotation calculation program that performs a quotation calculation based on a product selection by the user on the Web page and displays a result thereof on the Web page; and a Web page tampering detection program that determines at a specified timing[interval] whether or not portions of the Web page whose alteration is prohibited has been tampered with .

17.   A Web page to be transmitted from a server to a receiving terminal operated by a user through a network, the Web page comprising: a quotation calculation program that performs a quotation calculation based on a product selection by the user on the Web page and displays a result thereof on the Web page; and a monitoring program that detects a quotation calculation that violates a specified rule at a specified timing[interval].